

Primate Education Network WORKSHOP

Planning an education program: Design, implementation and evaluation tools

Primate Education Network (PEN) is a global network of educators working with primate conservation education. In this interactive workshop, participants will learn about this network, and develop their skills on design, implement and evaluate an education program to address different target audiences and context. The workshop will be divided in 4 parts:

- Part I: Introduction to PEN and objectives
- Part II: Discussion about what you need to develop an education activity/ lesson plan/ education program
- Part III: Choosing your materials and activities according to your target audience
- Part IV: Evaluation of education programs

July 19, 2018 (Thu)
9-12am, 1-5pm

Primate Research Institute,
Large Conference Room (1F)

Contact Rafaela Takeshita for details:
rafaela.takeshita.3n@kyoto-u.ac.jp

Dr. Xyomara Carretero-Pinzón is a JSPS post-doctoral fellow at Chubu University and PEN Regional Coordinator for Colombia and Venezuela. Her research focus on the effects of habitat loss and fragmentation on primate populations living in fragmented landscapes

