Also, since my field study was not done in my research, the field trekking was fresh as well. In the latter accommodation area, there was no mobile signal and hot water. It was the first time to go to such a place for me. I was unfamiliar, but on the last day I got used to it. The number of people who lost physical condition increased day by day and I felt the importance of sanitation management again. After all it was supposed to come out on the way due to poor physical fitness, but I think that I could have finished workshops and excursions in Indonesia without any other major accidents.
