

SUMMARY

CICASP Seminar in Science Communication #130

Exploring the Online Academic Conference Sphere II: online lightning talks
5PM–, Wednesday, May 27, 2020

In this workshop, participants practiced giving professional self-introductions on Zoom, in the format of 3-minute lightning talks. We discussed the unique challenges of online presentations, and shared visual, vocal, and narrative techniques that enhance the remote-participation experience of the audience.

OUTLINE

CICASP Seminar in Science Communication #131

Exploring the Online Academic Conference Sphere III: more tips for online presentations

5PM–, Wednesday, June 3, 2020 (online meeting using Zoom; access details will be provided in email announcements)

In this upcoming seminar, we will continue our exploration of what makes online academic presentations successful. We are inviting everyone to practice a lightning talk (3-minute professional self-introduction with 3 or fewer slides) or a poster/oral presentation using Zoom. As always, we will provide constructive and friendly feedback to presenters. This will be another great opportunity for you to develop your online presentation skills, which are becoming increasingly important.
